What's it all about?

Do you ever find yourself needing to generate new ideas quickly? Anything, from a new business challenge to something not going to plan. In these situations you may resort to brainstorming. However, this is only one of many techniques that you should be using.

The Generating Ideas Programme introduces you to the creative process. You will learn a broad range of creativity tools and, if required, how to use these to tackle a current business issue. This programme lends itself especially well to teams, groups, events and away days. It can be delivered at short notice to deal with an immediate business challenge or tailored to target a specific business issue.
